CLEVELAND, Ohio -- Playhouse Square is adding traveling exhibitions to its portfolio of entertainment offerings. First up is "Mummies of the World: The Exhibition," opening Sept. 23 at The Corner Gallery, the district's new exhibition space located in the former Cowell & Hubbard restaurant.

"Mummies of the World is one of the most popular traveling exhibitions in North America, and we are thrilled to host it at Playhouse Square in The Corner Gallery," said Playhouse Square Senior Vice President of Programming David Greene in a press release. "We are excited that this exhibit will allow us to further activate the Playhouse Square District and give guests – both new and returning – different, exciting and memorable experiences when they come and visit."

The new venue, along with the upcoming opening of Fresh Garden Café in the former Dynamite Burgers kiosk in U.S. Bank Plaza, is part of an effort to liven up the city's theater district. Included in that is the free outdoor concert by Andy Grammar and new marquee lighting ceremony on Sept. 28.

"Between our incredible line-up of performances in our theaters to our fantastic eateries and the addition of these new venues and special events, the Playhouse Square District will be brimming with energy, and we are excited to welcome everyone to take part in these experiences," Playhouse Square President & CEO Craig Hassall said.
